COPsync911

COPsync911 connects you directly with the five (5) law enforcement officers closest to your geographic location. Only officers who subscribe to the COPsync911 Network receive the alerts. With COPsync911, you inform officers directly and have silent access to law enforcement, making you better prepared for a threat.

COPsync911 is a threat alert system. When activated, officers in your area will respond to the emergency at your facility. As such, it is important for users to carefully manage the use of the service. Please refer to your organization's threat/disaster action plan for guidance as to when it would be proper to send a COPsync911 alert.

COPsync911 will be installed on instructor computers and office computers. It can be easily activated with the click of a button. There will be an icon on your computer, in case of an emergency you just click the icon and the authorities will be notified of your location. If possible, you can type in the nature of the emergency. Also, if there is an emergency at another location on campus, you will be notified and will be able to take appropriate actions to keep yourself and your students safe.

NOTE: DO NOT make comments to the press/media, refer all press/media to the President's Office 806-457-4200 ext. 715.

CODE RED PROTOCOL

In response to the national crisis affecting every community including both public and private schools and colleges, Frank Phillips College is participating in the Code RED program for Hutchinson County. This communication portal will provide emergency communications for everyone serving and/or attending Frank Phillips College who voluntarily sign up for this emergency telephone calling system. The Code RED system can alert participants of immediate actions needed or concerns relating to the campus. All emergency communications for the college will be dispatched through the president's office in conjunction and coordination with the local Emergency Operations Center.

CODE RED PROTOCOL:

- 1) Call the President's office at 806-457-4200 Ext. 715
- 2) President or his designee will decide nature of emergency

EMERGENCY RESPONSE PLAN

STATEMENT OF PURPOSE:

This Emergency Management Plan has been developed at the direction of the President of Frank Phillips College. The plan will guide and assist faculty and staff members of the FPC campuses in responding in an organized and effective manner when crises or emergencies occur.

DEFINITION OF A CRISIS:

A crisis is an event or series of events that impact the operation of this college and a well-being of this college community, necessitating an organized set of responses to preserve life and health, ensure safety, minimize property damage, and to meet the informational and other human needs of the general community.

An emergency may occur during college class time, and involve the physical plant, or occur off college property and outside of college class time. Events as awesome as a tornado or bomb, as commonplace and tragic as a fatal automobile accident, or as private and frightening as a despondent student contemplating suicide, are all crises, and each calls for a differing level and intensity of response. As a general rule, the degree of response should be limited to the level required to adequately resolve the problem.

Nothing in this plan should be construed as a substitution for the obligation to dial 911 for assistance when the situation demands it.

RESPONSILITIES:

The President of Frank Phillips College has the overall responsibility for:

- Establishing and implementing the Crisis Management Program.
- Prescribing the training required for faculty and staff members, and for members of Emergency Intervention Teams.

The Safety Department Leader is responsible for:

- Preparing, maintaining and updating the Emergency Response Manual.
- Assisting the president in training and building Emergency Intervention Teams, and faculty and staff members when requested.
- Assisting the president in assessing the extent of crises, determining the nature of response required, and providing skilled professional assistance and direct intervention when requested.
- Coordinating crisis response evaluations with the president following the resolution of crises; evaluation recommendations for amendments to the Emergency Response Manual; making and distributing amendments when necessary.

NOTE: DO NOT make comments to the press/media, refer all press/media to the President's Office 806-457-4200 ext. 715.

- Maintaining and publishing a list of resources within the community, or state-wide, as necessary, which may be called upon to provide assistance in an emergency; coordinating the mobilization of those resources when required.

Building Crisis Intervention Team Leaders are responsible for:

- Maintaining the building's master copy of the Crisis Management Plan, preparing and distributing supplementary material, and updating the plan when required.
- Training or assisting in training other faculty and staff members in crisis intervention techniques under the direction of the president.
- Assisting the president in assessing the nature of crises and determine the appropriate level of response.
- Assembling the Team members upon activation of the Crisis Intervention Teams.
- Directing the activities of the Crisis Intervention Team in providing the services required to respond to the crisis.
- Calling for assistance from the president for community resources when appropriate.
- Keeping the president informed of the services being provided, activities in progress, and additional needs.
- Advising the president when the crisis has been resolved.
- Coordinating the evaluation of actions taken and results attained following the resolution of the crisis.

Faculty and Staff Members of FPC are responsible for:

- Familiarizing them with the Crisis Management Plan.
- Knowing the name of, and how to contact, the Building Crisis Team Leader.
- Recognize crisis situations and take immediate actions to:
- Notify the president and the Building Crisis Intervention Team Leader when the potential for a crisis is apparent or a crisis has occurred.
- Dial 911 when the situation demands it.
- Protect lives and property, prevent injury and alleviate pain.

COMMUNITY RESOURCES

Frank Phillips College has access to many resources within the community and across the state that offer assistance in dealing with crises. These resources range from the emergency teams, police, and fire department and emergency medical services—that respond rapidly to a call to 911, to mental health counseling centers and poison control centers. They include chaplains and ministers, the American Red Cross, the County Health Department and the National Guard.

NOTE: DO NOT make comments to the press/media, refer all press/media to the President's Office 806-457-4200 ext. 715.

CRISIS INTERVENTION TEAMS

The Crisis Intervention Teams are the college's main line of defense against the adverse effects of a crisis. Staffed by trained professionals, the teams can take control of the situation, freeing the President or Designee to assess the extent of the crisis and to make vital decisions. The teams relieve teachers and staff members from the responsibility of dealing with problems they may never have faced before or which may be beyond their ability to solve.

Mission: The Mission of the Emergency Response Teams is to be prepared to react promptly to threatened or actual emergency by putting highly trained professionals on the scene to assess the extent of the problem, take immediate action to protect lives, health and property and to establish communication with Frank Phillips College administration. Secondary missions include training of faculty, staff members and students in the implementation of the Emergency Response Plan, and providing long term service to assist in countering the ill-effects of an emergency.

Building Emergency Response Teams are appointed by the President. The size and composition of the team will depend upon the size population of the building.

A member of the maintenance staff of each building should be designated as an auxiliary member of the Emergency Response Team, to advise and assist the team when an emergency involves the physical plant.

The President may prescribe additional training subjects and standards for team members, including by not limited to First Aide, CPR, COPsync911 and use of handheld radio.

FACULTY AND STAFF TRAINING:

Faculty and staff members will receive instruction on the Emergency Response Manual (ERM) and in-service training on crisis procedures. The training will include, at a minimum:

- The purpose and contents of the ERM
- The role of the Emergency Response Team
- Responsibilities of faculty and staff members in crisis management
- The emergency procedures outlined in the basic ERM and in the supplementary material relating to their school or business.
- Testing and use of handheld radios.

NOTE: DO NOT make comments to the press/media, refer all press/media to the President's Office 806-457-4200 ext. 715.

In addition, will receive training in dealing with students at risk: recognizing the warning signs of depression or substance dependency, and steps to take to secure help for affected students.

All faculty and staff members will be aware of:

- The name and telephone numbers of their Building Emergency Response Team Leader.
- The location of Emergency Response Manual and supplementary material, and the list of community resources.
- The location of first aid stations in their building.
- The location of handheld radios in various offices throughout the campus.

The President may prescribe additional training subjects and standards for faculty and staff.

INSTRUCTOR RESPONSE TO CRISES:

If the Emergency Response Teams are the main line of defense against the adverse effects of a crisis, then the first line of defense must surely be the instructor. It is the instructor who must be able to recognize the signs of an impending emergency in the classroom, and to avert the crisis if at all possible. The instructor must be alert to individual problems- -the depressed student, the disruptive student- - and seek help for those individuals before their behavior can influence the entire classroom and precipitate a crisis.

If a crisis occurs, the instructor must notify the President's office and the Emergency Response Team, but pending their arrival on the scene, it is the instructor who must deal with the situation, administer first-aid if required, maintain control over the students, and protect lives and property.

The instructor's role in the aftermath of an emergency is equally important, and frequently more taxing. The instructor not only faces the practical aspects of dealing in the classroom with the physical effects of the crisis, but also must understand and cope with student reactions. Natural disasters and tragedies such as suicide or accidental death: all generate long-term as well as immediate emotional responses from students. Although state and community resources may be mobilized to deal with the psychological impact of crises, the instructor must address on-going student needs during the regular class day.

EMERGENCY RESPONSE POLICY

PHILOSOPHY OF EMERGENCY RESPONSE

When a crisis occurs, all segments of the college community may be affected: students, staff members, and patrons. Frank Phillips College is concerned about the welfare of people during crisis situations. When these situations occur, the college will initiate necessary actions to assure that needs are responded to with compassion and respect.

Any response to a crisis requires underlying concerns about people and is facilitated by the development of knowledgeable and supportive teams of individuals in the college who can become mobilized in crisis situations. An effective response to a crisis will assist in dealing with loss with minimal disruption to the educational process by providing a planned approach. The crisis response will be guided by effective and efficient leadership of crisis teams, which will become viable resources to the college and community in a variety of situations.

Pre-crisis Measures: Being prepared to deal with a crisis at the college requires that numerous measures be implemented well in advance of an emergency. These include the following:

- A. Ensure that the building is safe. The faculty and staff must always be committed to the elimination of unsafe or hazardous conditions on campus property.
- B. Selection and Organization of Building Emergency Response Teams. The Building Director will appoint a building crisis response team for their building. The Building Director will determine the number of members on their team. All team members will be apprised of team member names.
- C. Team Training. Each team must be trained and individuals must be aware of their roles in a crisis event. In addition, the training should include simulation activities, and this training should be updated as needed. Team members will be trained for multiple roles.
- D. Development of Written Procedures. Effective crisis engagement requires written procedures. Any changes in these procedures must be incorporated in writing and distributed to all members
Disclaimer Statement*—During an emergency it may not be possible to refer to the Emergency Response Manual because our efforts need to focus on the safety of the students and the FPC employees. Every effort will be made to acquaint the FPC employees with the current revision of the Frank Phillips Emergency Response Manual.
- E. Identification of CPR (Cardiac Pulmonary Resuscitation) Trained Employees. In some crisis situations, it will be necessary to provide CPR. Team members should be surveyed to determine those with CPR training. Their name should be made known to all FPC employees.

General Campus Procedures

A. Notification

Any person who learns of a crisis that they think may affect the college community should report such knowledge to the Building Director or Designee. The Building Director or designee will notify the President's office and then mobilize the Building Emergency Response Team, who will meet immediately to decide when to begin the plan. During a crisis, the students, faculty and staff should continue their regular routines as much as possible.

B. Working With Emergency Services

If any emergency service is needed (police, fire, ambulance, sheriff, etc.) tell the emergency service dispatcher specifically where to report (that location where the Team Leader can be found). Remain there until help arrives. If it is necessary to send anyone to the hospital by ambulance, send a team member along to serve as a liaison between the hospital and Frank Phillips College.

C. Media Procedures

Prompt and accurate information must be provided to the media. Isolated quotes from individuals are usually incomplete or misleading and therefore, MUST BE AVOIDED. After calling emergency services and following safety procedures for your building, it is imperative that employees IMMEDIATELY relay factual information regarding any emergency or disaster to the Building Director or designee or the Building Communication Manager. The Building Communications Manager will communicate the factual information to the Campus Liaison who will, in turn relay the information to the Campus Emergency Response Team Leader. The Campus Emergency Response Team Leader will then handle the release of information to the media.

D. Support Room

Throughout the day of the crisis, students who are particularly upset or affected will be given the opportunity to receive support from appropriate faculty and volunteers such as, counselor ministers, etc.

E. Evacuation

Once the evacuation order from the president or his designee has been received by the Building Director, the Building Director will:

1. Relay evacuation instructions to every classroom in their building that is affected, by the most rapid and efficient means.
2. Designated personnel will inspect the entire structure once evacuation is completed to assure the building is empty and precautions dictated by the fire plan or other specific disaster plans are taken.

NOTE: DO NOT make comments to the press/media, refer all press/media to the President's Office 806-457-4200 ext. 715.

3. The Campus Emergency Response Team Leader may request assistance from Administration, EOC and/or the Sheriff's Dept. to assure that students disperse from the building to minimize hazards and reduce congestion.
4. In the event that there are children on the campus, such as Kids College, a children's day care center, etc., these children will be released to their PARENTS OR GUARDIANS ONLY! They are not to just leave by themselves or anyone else. Children may be moved to an alternative building to provide them protection and shelter, until the parents can be notified of our situation and then pick up their child.
